Preface

This Standard was prepared by the Standards Australia Committee MB-009, Human Resources and Employment.

The objective of this Standard is to provide guidance on how to attract, source, assess and recruit people. It focuses on key processes and practices, including—

- (a) recruitment policy development;
- (b) flow from the sourcing of potential applicants to the boarding of new recruits; and
- (c) evaluation and measurement.

This Standard can be used by any organization regardless of type or size.

This Standard is identical with, and has been reproduced from, ISO 30405:2016, Human resource management — Guidelines on recruitment.

As this document has been reproduced from an International Standard, a full point substitutes for a comma when referring to a decimal marker.

Australian or Australian/New Zealand Standards that are identical to options of international normative references may be used interchangeably. Refer to the online catalogue for information on specific Standards.

The terms “normative” and “informative” are used in Standards to define the application of the appendices or annexes to which they apply. A “normative” appendix or annex is an integral part of a Standard, whereas an “informative” appendix or annex is only for information and guidance.

Foreword

ISO (the International Organization for Standardization) is a worldwide federation of national standards bodies (ISO member bodies). The work of preparing International Standards is normally carried out through ISO technical committees. Each member body interested in a subject for which a technical committee has been established has the right to be represented on that committee. International organizations, governmental and non-governmental, in liaison with ISO, also take part in the work. ISO collaborates closely with the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) on all matters of electrotechnical standardization.

The procedures used to develop this document and those intended for its further maintenance are described in the ISO/IEC Directives, Part 1. In particular the different approval criteria needed for the different types of ISO documents should be noted. This document was drafted in accordance with the editorial rules of the ISO/IEC Directives, Part 2 (see www.iso.org/directives).

Attention is drawn to the possibility that some of the elements of this document may be the subject of patent rights. ISO shall not be held responsible for identifying any or all such patent rights. Details of any patent rights identified during the development of the document will be in the Introduction and/or on the ISO list of patent declarations received (see www.iso.org/patents).

Any trade name used in this document is information given for the convenience of users and does not constitute an endorsement.

For an explanation on the meaning of ISO specific terms and expressions related to conformity assessment, as well as information about ISO's adherence to the World Trade Organization (WTO) principles in the Technical Barriers to Trade (TBT) see the following URL: www.iso.org/iso/foreword.html.

The committee responsible for this document is Technical Committee ISO/TC 260, Human resource management.

Introduction

0.1 General

Recruitment is a major part of human resource management, including the necessary activities an organization undertakes to attract, source, assess and employ people. The activities that comprise recruitment also overlap, to some degree, with those that comprise staffing, but the prime focus of this document is on recruitment.

The impact of recruitment on organizational performance was noted in a survey conducted of 4 200 executives from 102 countries by the World Federation of People Management Association (WFPMA), which showed that organizations ranked in the top 20 % in terms of ability to deliver on recruiting experienced up to 3,5 times the revenue growth and as much as twice the average profit margin of other organizations.

This document aims to help organizations focus and deliver on recruitment performance objectives by providing guidance on effective processes and procedures necessary for the recruitment of people.

0.2 Relationship with human resource management in the context of the organization

The recruitment process begins when a requisition is approved. Recruitment is designed to attract, source, assess and employ people to carry out an organization's activities. Figure 1 illustrates the overall recruitment process.

Inputs:

Organizational needs
Human resource management policies and objectives
Legal and social environment
Workforce planning

Improvements

Outputs:

Quality of talent
Quantity of talent
Recruitment outcomes
Human resource outcomes

Figure 1 highlights the fundamental role of the employer brand, recruitment work and the four critical elements (attract, source, assess and employ people) that influence the quality and quantity of people available to the organization. This in turn affects human resource management outcomes, ultimately affecting the organization's performance.

0.3 Using this document

This document provides guidance to those people responsible for recruiting. Clause 4 describes both processes and procedures, as well as the relevant criteria one can use to attract, source, assess and employ people in the organization. Clause 5 provides guidelines for measurement, analysis and improvement for assessing the efficiency, effectiveness and impact of the recruiting process.

NOTE In some countries, permission is required when using or retaining personal data from applicants/candidates.

Human resource management — Guidelines on recruitment

1 Scope

This document provides guidance on how to attract, source, assess and recruit people. It focuses on key processes and practices, including:

- recruitment policy development;
- the flow from the sourcing of potential applicants to the boarding of new recruits;
- evaluation and measurement.

This document can be used by any organization regardless of type or size.

NOTE In larger organizations, the recruitment function is typically carried out by human resource professionals or recruitment experts. In smaller organizations, recruitment can be performed by people without formal human resource training or experience. This document can be used by anyone performing this function, as well as human resource educators and consultants who determine, analyse and report on recruitment.
